Optimist Sergeant-at-Arms Pursues Club's 'Outlaws'

A thriving business collecting funds from late-comers, members who failed to wear badges and who breached club etiquette was begun Sept. 17 at the Optimist Club meeting when Sargent-at-Arms Donald MacCullem set to work.

President R. K. Petrat even had to dole out some cash to the eager sergeant-at-arms when he broke an etiquette rule.

Ernest Dandoy, vice president and program chairman, introduced Officer Glyn Boyce of the Torrance Police Department, speaker. Boyce spoke on radar equipment and its use in Torrance.

USE SINCE 1959
"Radar has been used in Torrance since the fall of 1959. It was first used to survey all streets carrying through traffic. The information gained about average traffic speeds has been used to revise speed limits throughout the city," he said. However, radar equipment has been used to enforce speed limits since 1959.

Officer Boyce stated — "Its use to establish proper speed zones and to enforce speed limits has measurably decreased speed in our city. At the same time, it has increased the normal flow on many of the most heavily-traveled roadways.

NOT ELIMINATED
Radar has not eliminated traffic accidents but its use has lessened the severity of property damage and personal injuries. Radar, as used in Torrance, is mobile and can be operated on all roadways at any location," he said.

"Motorcycle officers working with radar are instantly informed of maximum speeds and are able to avoid unnecessary high speed pursuits that expose themselves and the public to accident possibilities that can be prevented.

RESPONSIBILITY
"Your law enforcement agency has the responsibility of highway safety. Voluntary compliance prevents the traffic citations and the tragic death tolls," Boyce concluded. He then demonstrated radar equipment.

Club members adjourned to the street where the radar equipment was checking speeds of automobiles.

First Original Production Presented by Theater Group
By MAGGIE CUTHBERT
Hampton Players are presenting their first original play, "The Twelfth of Never" by Duke Yelton, at the Hampton Theatre, 100 Wall St. Redondo.

The setting is a beach town; the plot is a struggle of a necessary teenage marriage. Conflicts and anxieties are heightened by backgrounds and prejudices of the couple's parents. The four principle roles are well acted by Mary Station and Fred Vaugois as the harrassed young couple, Michelle Richards as the girl's not-too-virtuous mother and Ed Siani as mother's latest pick-up in a long succession of uncles.

Supporting roles were handled by Austin Rheingold, Mary Buckley, Ed Cook, Dana Frazier, Dennis Robbins, John Blasingame, Katherine Brown, Suzanne Shinder, Bud Yelton, Margaret Taylor and Hall Lepper.

Yelton has given this cast a lot of effective dialogue and several notable scenes, especially the scene between both parents and the young couple before the young girl has a miscarriage. The realistic staging and direction was handled by Jay Stephens, who has kept the pace moving except for a slight lisp in the first act. The strong language was overdone. However, the play has all the ingredients for a successful run.

"The Twelfth of Never" is a good adult entertainment! This play can be seen Friday and Saturday nights through Oct. 20. For reservations call Balmoral Antiques FR 2-8546.

A Tip For Coeds
An adequate supply of beauty aids is important for all women, but especially for the college girl, whose campus is often isolated from a shopping area. To make sure you don't run short unexpectedly, cut out this check list and tape it to your mirror. That way you'll always be well groomed.

Hand and body moisture lotion, skin freshener, deodorant, purse cologne atomizer, lipstick, medicated eye drops, facial moisture lotion, pumice stone, both oil, Kleenex tissues, eye make-up, manicure kit.
